

Learning Commons

By: Diana Si

What Is Learning Commons?

- © It is a new concept where everyone is a participant in the learning process (including teachers)
- © Which is very different from the traditional way of teaching, where the teachers know everything

Continued....

☀ It can happen in groups where you learn from each other and help each other out when needed

☀ Everyone knows something you don't know so don't mind asking someone for help!

Where can Learning happen?

Commons Happen?

- Learning commons can happen anywhere, not just in a classroom
- It can be in the public library
- We also spend a large time on the computer whether it be catching up on the latest news, looking for a good place to go vacationing or maybe just asking for help on homework, that is also learning commons

What is Learning Commons? (Response from teachers)

Mr. Tong;

Teachers getting together and sharing ideas for the best way of teaching. It may also mean to come together for a common goal.

Ms. Huh;

Students that know their own strengths and learning styles so that they can improve their skills using the learning style they prefer.

Ms. Wadia

Ideas and next steps from students in order to improve learning skills. Different students may have different learning skills and speeds.

Mrs. Maliszewski;

It is a different way of looking at education. Learning commons can happen anywhere not just in the classroom i.e.; virtually on blogs and chat rooms.

More Questions About Learning

Commons

- ② Can learning commons be accomplished individually?
- ② Will it be officially introduced to the school program?
- ② Who first came up with the concept of learning commons?
- ② Is learning commons a better concept than the traditional way of teaching?

Bibliography

- <http://www.lib.uts.edu.au/fpss/slideshows/slideshow-cc03/images/learning-commons.jpg>
- <http://dailynews.mcmaster.ca/images/learning%20commons%20edited.jpg>
- <http://www.library.yorku.ca/ccm/Home/preview/infolit/commons/learning-commons.en>
- http://tulane.edu/oua/images/Learning-Commons-002_1.jpg